

News Archive

- Neither Consumers nor the Food Standards Agency have Concerns about the Safety of Aspartame
- Ajinomoto Defends the Reputation of Aspartame
- Scientific study concludes that chewing sugar-free gum may help to manage weight
- Study highlights the benefits of low-calorie sweeteners
- EFSA dismisses Ramazzini claims once again
- Major New Study Dispels Aspartame Myths
- The Aspartame Information Service responds to allegations about aspartame safety published by three anatomists from the Universities of Pretoria and Limpopo
- Aspartame proven to help reduce weight
- Food Safety Authority challenges activists' views on aspartame
- European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) confirms the safety of aspartame
- New Zealand Food Safety Authority (NZFSA) is confident of aspartame safety
- Aspartame and the Ramazzini Institute
- American Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Reconfirms Aspartame Safety
- Find out how much weight you could lose by choosing foods and drinks with aspartame
- New Study Reconfirms the Safety of Aspartame
- Five-Year, Government Funded, Epidemiology Study Confirms Safety of Aspartame
- Aspartame Information replies to the New York Times (distributed with The Daily Telegraph)
- The Aspartame Information service responds to allegations made in research funded by Organix Brands PLC
- Aspartame Information responds to allegations made by Roger Williams MP
- The Aspartame Information Service responds to allegations by the Ramazzini Institute.
- The Aspartame Information Service responds to The Ecologist
- King's College research completed
- Health Canada acknowledges the safety of aspartame
- The European Commission's Scientific Committee on Food (SCF) reaffirms the safety of aspartame
- French Food Safety Agency gives aspartame a clean bill of health
- Part of the Solution - low and no calorie soft drinks could to help keep weight down
- Young People and Diet: Low sugar soft drinks can improve young people's diets
- Ajinomoto welcomes SCF Review
- Betty Martini's scare mongering does a disservice to us all
- Ajinomoto Co Inc to acquire full ownership of NutraSweet AG and Euro-Aspartame SA

- Research at King's College, London
- NutraSweet advertising upheld by the Advertising Standards Authority
- Broadcasting Standards Commission upholds complaint against Channel 4 Dispatches
- Aspartame approved for general use in the United States
- More evidence that Aspartame helps to control weight
- Passage of sweetener directive to benefit food & drink industry and consumers
- Broadcasting Complaints Commission upholds complaint against BBC Radio Sussex.
- The NutraSweet Company v. Guardian Newspapers Limited: statement in open court on settlement of action
- NutraSweet Company issues writ for libel and malicious falsehood against The Guardian